

Letter Urging the President to Make the University of Washington a Sanctuary Campus and to Protect Academic Freedom

November 17, 2016

Ana Mari Cauce, President
Gerald Baldasty, Provost and Executive Vice President

Dear President Cauce and Provost Baldasty,

In Autumn 2016, the University of Washington proudly announced the arrival of its most racially diverse incoming class ever. As we take pride in that accomplishment, we believe that the university's commitment to creating a just and inclusive learning environment must remain a top priority. Your office's launching of the Race and Equity Initiative underscored the need to address structural inequalities to work toward that broader goal.

In light of the recent U.S. presidential election and widespread reports of overt harassment and violent aggression since the election, we believe that you and other university leaders must take steps to ensure the safety and well-being of undocumented and underrepresented students, staff, and faculty at the University of Washington. We urge you to make a clear and strong declaration on behalf of and in alliance with the most vulnerable members of our university community.

We, the undersigned members of the UW community, are and stand with Black, Muslim, LGBTQI, Latinx, Asian, and Native American communities, people without papers, disabled people, immigrants, refugees, and women. And joining calls by many campus communities across the country, we request that you and other appropriate leaders on the university's three campuses issue an unequivocal statement and implement plans to protect:

1. The safety of undocumented students, staff, faculty, and their families. In particular, we urge you to declare UW a sanctuary for all undocumented students, workers, and their families. As you know, President-Elect Donald Trump has promised to abolish the Deferred Action for Childhood Arrivals (DACA) and Deferred Action for Parents of Americans (DAPA) and to deport millions of undocumented immigrants. If carried out, his policies will break up families, devastate communities, and undermine the civic vitality and economic growth of our campus, city, and region for generations. Many mayors across the United States, including Mayor Ed Murray of Seattle, have issued statements proclaiming their commitment to making their cities sanctuaries for undocumented immigrants; and have affirmed that commitment in the wake of the presidential election (<http://www.seattletimes.com/seattle-news/politics/nyc-chicago-mayors-join-seattles-ed-murray-in-support-of-sanctuary-cities-for-immigrants/>) We urge you to reinforce Mayor Murray's statement. UW Police and all other offices on our campus should protect undocumented students and workers, including through the preservation and expansion of safe spaces and other resources devoted to undocumented students. We specifically urge you to issue directives that will: 1) restrict Immigration and Customs Enforcement (ICE) agents' access to UW campuses; 2) deny ICE access to student, staff, and faculty data; 3) refuse collaboration between ICE and UW Police; and 4) provide additional staff and training to support undocumented members of our community and their families.

2. Academic freedom. The hateful speech and violence that Trump's presidential campaign practiced and inspired are antithetical to the mission of higher education. We cannot begin to function as a university—to teach and research effectively, to make advances in knowledge, to serve our surrounding communities—if some of us are intimidated or censored. We urge you and other leaders across the Bothell, Seattle, and Tacoma campuses to reaffirm publicly your commitment to academic freedom, noting its vital importance to challenging populist orthodoxies of white nationalism, homophobia, transphobia, and misogyny. UW must stand behind and with all faculty and instructors—especially faculty of color, women faculty, Muslim faculty, disabled faculty, and all faculty without the protection of tenure—who explore and promote struggles for social justice in the classroom.

As a public institution committed to the social good, UW, we hope, will remain vigilant in promoting and protecting the values that inclusive and equitable societies are built upon. Institutions of higher education have a unique responsibility to shelter and defend scientific consensus and truth and to speak out against repressions and acts of state violence discredited by our social and historical knowledge.

Respectfully,
